Ownership and control of independent wallets	Obtain list of wallets/digital assets controlled by the Company as per its records. For all digital assets, the Company communicates associated public keys, and KITH notes that those public keys were used in transactions written to the blockchain. The goal of the Procedures noted above is to identify the ownership of those public keys, that is, to support the following assumptions: 1. The Company has access to the private keys paired to the public keys and can, in theory, control the digital asset associated to the public keys. 2. The Company can use the private keys and the blockchain technology to control the digital asset in practice. 3. The Company is the sole entity able to control the digital asset. Access tests will involve: 1. KITH privately creates a unique message. 2. KITH communicates the unique message only to the Company. 3. The Company communicates back the message, signed with the corresponding private key(s). 4. KITH confirms that the message was signed correctly using the public key(s) under review. Period Profit/Loss values are calculated based on average values of asset holdings to avoid reporting on unrealised gains/losses. The recalculation was done using information provided by management and control systems kept by management that were provided to us.
